Whitehall, July 14, 1781.

BY the Sandwich Packet, which ſailed from New York the 14th of June, the Duplicate of a Diſpatch from Sir Henry Clinton, Knight of the Bath, to the Right Honourable Lord George Germain, One of His Majeſty's Principal Secretaries of State, ſent by the Confederacy Frigate, has been received, of which the following is an Extract.

Extract of a Letter from Sir Henry Clinton, Knight of the Bath, to Lord George Germain, One of His Majeſty's Principal Secretaries of State, dated New York, June 9, 1781.

IN my Diſpatch, N°. 126. I had the Honor to inform your Lordſhip, that Lieutenant General Robertſon was upon the Point of going to the Cheſapeak to take the Command of the Troops there. But Major-General Phillips's Aid de Camp having ſoon after arrived here with the Account of Lord Cornwallis having entered Virginia, and the melancholy News of Major-General Phillips's Death, I thought it unneceſſary to ſend General Robertſon, who is accordingly returned to this Poſt. As Lord Cornwallis will have ſoon been informed of the Arrival in Cheſapeak of the laſt Reinforcement from hence, and that Vice-Admiral Arbuthnot was at Sea. I am inclined to ſuppoſe he will of Courſe proceed immediately againſt La Fayette, who I think cannot eſcape him, and the Appearance of ſo formidable Force in Cheſapeak may incline ſome of thoſe Provinces to ſubmit.

Brigadier-General Howard (whoſe very ſpirited and volunteer Services with the Southern Army have been highly meritorious) will have the Honor of delivering this Diſpatch to your Lordſhip. And as

as he has a general Knowledge of the Operations carrying on in Carolina, as well as of thoſe that are probable here (concerning which I have had ſeveral confidential Converſations with him. I beg Leave to refer your Lordſhip to him for Particulars.

I have the Honor to incloſe Copies of ſome lately intercepted Diſpatches.

Extract of an intercepted Letter from General Waſhington to the Marquis de la Fayette, dated New Windſor, May 31, 1781.

IN a Letter which I wrote to Baron Stuben on the 16th Inſtant, I deſired him to inform you, as I did not know at that Time where you might be, that I had good Reaſon to believe a Detachment of between 1500 and 2000 Men had ſailed from New York a few Days before; I now have it confirmed, and I think you may either look for them in Cheſapeak or further Southward.

Your Determination to avoid an Engagement with your preſent Force is certainly judicious. I hope the Pennſylvanians have began their March before this, but I have no Information of it. General Wayne has been preſſed, both by Congreſs and the Board of War, to make as much Expedition as poſſible, and extraordinary Powers are given to him to enable him to procure Proviſions.

Extract of a private intercepted Letter from General Waſhington to the Marquis de la Fayette, dated New Windſor, May 31, 1781.

I HAVE juſt returned from Weatherfield, at which I expected to have met the Count du Rochambeau and Count de Barras; but the Britiſh Fleet having made its Appearance off Block Iſland, the Admiral did not think it prudent to leave Newport. Count Rochambeau was only attended by Chevalier Chatellux. Generals Knox and Duportail were with me.

Upon a full Conſideration of our Affairs in every Point of View, an Attempt upon New York with its preſent Garriſon (which, by Eſtimation, is reduced to 4500 Regular Troops and about 3000 Irregulars) was deemed preferable to a Southern Operation, as we had not the Command of the Water. The Reaſons which induced this Determination were, the Danger to be apprehended from the approaching Heats, the inevitable Diſſipation and Loſs of Men by ſo long a March, and the Difficulty of Tranſportation; but above all, it was thought that we had a tolerable Proſpect of expelling the Enemy, or obliging them to withdraw Part of their Force from the Southward, which laſt would give the moſt effectual Relief to thoſe States. The French Troops are to march this Way as ſoon as certain Circumſtances will admit, leaving about 200 Men at Providence with the heavy Stores, and 500 Militia upon Rhode Iſland to ſecure the Works.

I am endeavouring to prevail upon the States to fill up their Battalions for the Campaign, if they cannot do it upon better Terms, and to ſend in ample and regular Supplies of Proviſion. Thus you perceive it will be ſome Time before our Plan can be ripe for Execution, and that a Failure on our Part in Men and Supplies may defeat it; but I am in Hopes that the States in this Quarter will exert themſelves to attain what has long been a favourite, and is an important Object to them.

Copy of an intercepted Letter from General Waſhington to General Sullivan, dated Head Quarters, New Windſor, May 29, 1781.

DEAR SIR,

I Have been favoured with your Two Letters of the 2d and 17th of May, the former reached me at Weathersfield, after I had met the Count de Rochambeau at that Place; from which Time to the preſent Moment, my whole Attention has been ſo occupied by a Variety of Concerns, that I have been hitherto involuntarily prevented from doing myſelf the Pleaſure of writing to you.

No Arguments were neceſſary to convince me of the great Public Utility, which would reſult from the Succeſs of the Plan you propoſed laying before Congreſs.—Had I been unappriſed of the Advantages which might be derived to our Cauſe from a ſucceſsful Attempt, or even a powerful Diverſion, in that Quarter, the Reaſons you have offered would have carried irrefragable Demonſtration with them, and induced me to be of your Opinion. But the perplexed, diſtreſſed, and embarraſſed State of our Affairs on Account of Supplies, (with which you are well acquainted;) the languid Efforts of the States to procure Men, and the inſuperable Difficulties in the Way of Tranſportation, would, I apprehend, have rendered the Scheme (however devoutly to be wiſhed and deſired) abortive in the firſt Inſtance.—And, I muſt inform you, there is yet another Obſtacle, which makes the Attempt you have ſuggeſted abſolutely impracticable, with the Means you propoſe, but which I dare not commit to Paper, for Fear of the Misfortune, which has already happened to ſome of my Letters.

You will have ſeen before the Receipt of this, by my Public Letter to Congreſs of the 27th Inſtant, the Reſult of the Deliberations of the Count de Rochambeau and myſelf at Weathersfield —That Plan, upon the matureſt Conſideration, and after combining all the preſent Circumſtances and future Proſpects, appeared (though precarious) far the moſt eligible of any we could poſſibly deviſe.—The Object was conſidered to be of great Magnitude, and more within our Reach than any other.—The Weakneſs of the Garriſon of New York, the Centrical Poſition for drawing together Men and Supplies, and the Spur, which an Attempt againſt that Place would give to every Exertion, were among the Reaſons which prompted to that Undertaking, and which promiſed the faireſt Proſpect of Succeſs, unleſs the Enemy ſhould recall a conſiderable Part of their Force from the Southward; and even in this Caſe, the ſame Meaſure which might produce Diſappointment in one Quarter, would certainly, in the Event, afford the greateſt Relief in another.

While an Opportunity preſents itſelf of ſtriking the Enemy a fatal Blow, I will perſuade myſelf the concurring Exertions of Congreſs, of the ſeveral States immediately concerned, and of every Individual in them who is well affected to our Cauſe, will be united in yielding every poſſible Aid on the Occaſion. At this Criſis, while I rejoice at the Appointment of the Miniſter of Finance, I have ſincerely to regret, that the Miniſters of the other Departments have not alſo been appointed, eſpecially a Miniſter of War. At the ſame Time I am happy to learn, the Mode of Promotion is on the Point of being finally eſtabliſhed.

With the higheſt Sentiments of Regard and Eſteem, I am, &c.

(Signed) G. WASHINGTON.

Hon. General Sullivan.

Copy of a Letter from the Marquis de la Fayette to General Waſhington, dated Wilton, North Side of James River, May 18, 1781.

DEAR GENERAL,

HAVING been directed by General Greene to take Command of the Troops in Virginia, I have alſo received Orders from him, that every Account from this Quarter be immediately tranſmitted to Congreſs and to your Excellency: In Obedience to which I ſhall have the Honor to relate our Movements

Movements, and thoſe of the combined Armies of the Enemy.

When General Phillips retreated from Richmond, his Project was to ſtop at Williamſburgh, there to collect Contributions which he had impoſed: This induced me to take a Poſition between Pamunky and Chickahamony Rivers, which equally covered Richmond and ſome other intereſting Parts of the State, and from whence I detached General Nelſon with ſome Militia towards Williamſburgh.

Having got as low down as that Place, General Phillips ſeemed to diſcover an Intention to make a Landing; but, upon Advices received by a Veſſel from Portſmouth, the Enemy weighed Anchor, and with all the Sail they could croud haſtened up the River: This Intelligence made me apprehenſive that the Enemy intended to manœuvre me out of Richmond, where I returned immediately, and again collected our ſmall Force. Intelligence was the ſame Day received that Lord Cornwallis, (who I had been aſſured to have embarked at Wilmington) was marching through North Carolina, (this was confirmed by the Landing of Gen. Phillips at Brandon, South Side of James River. Apprehending that both Armies would move to meet at a central Point, I marched towards Peterſburgh, and intended to have eſtabliſhed a Communication over Appamatox and James River; but on the 9th General Phillips took Poſſeſſion of Peterſburgh, a Place where his Right Flank being covered by James River, his Front by Appamatox, on which the Bridges had been deſtroyed in the Firſt of the Invaſion, and his Leſt not being attackable but by a long Circuit through Fords that at this Seaſon are very uncertain, I could not (even with an equal Force) have got any Chance of fighting him, unleſs I had given up this Side of James River, and the Country from which Reinforcements are expected.

It being at the Enemy's Choice to force us to an Action, while their own Poſition inſured them againſt our Enterprizes, I thought it proper to ſhift this Sitnation, and marched the greater Part of our Troops to this Place, about Ten Miles below Richmond. Letters from General Naſh, General Sumner, and General Jones, are poſitive as to the Arrival of Colonel Tarleton, and announce that of Lord Cornwallis at Haliſax.

Having received a Requeſt from North Carolina for Ammunition, I made a Detachment of 500 Men under General Muhlenburg, to eſcort 20,000 Cartridges over Appamatox; and to divert the Enemy's Attention, Colonel Gimat, with his Battalion and Four Field Pieces, cannonaded their Poſition from this Side the River. I hope our Ammunition will arrive ſafe, as before General Muhlenburg returned, he put it in a ſafe Road, with proper Directions.

On the 13th General Phillips died, and the Command devolved on General Arnold.

General Wayne's Detachment has not yet been heard of; before he arrives, it becomes very dangerous to riſk any Engagement, where (either of the Britiſh Armies being vaſtly ſuperior to us) we ſhall certainly be beaten; and by the Loſs of Arms, the Diſperſion of the Militia, and the Difficulty of a Junction with General Wayne, we may loſe a leſs dangerous Chance of Reſiſtance.

Theſe Conſiderations have induced me to think, that, with our ſo very great Inferiority, and with the Advantage the Enemy have by their Cavalry and Naval Superiority, there would be much Raſhneſs in fighting them on any but our Ground, and this Side the River; and that an Engagement, which I fear will be ſoon neceſſary, ought if poſſible to be deferred till the Pennſylvanians arrive, whom I have by ſeveral Letters requeſted to haſten to our Aſſiſtance.

No Report has lately come from near Haliſax, though a very active Officer has been ſent for that Purpoſe; but every Intelligence confirms that Lord Cornwallis is hourly expected at Petersburgh. It is true there never was ſuch Difficulty in getting tolerable Intelligence as there is in this Country, and the immenſe Superiority of the Enemy's Horſe renders it very precarious to hazard our ſmall Parties.

Arnold has received a ſmall Reinforcement from Portſmouth.

Dear General,
Your moſt obedient humble Servant,
(Signed) LA FAYETTE.

P. S. In Juſtice to Major Mitchel and Captain Muir, who were taken at Peterſburgh, I have the Honor to inform your Excellency, that they had been ſent to that Place on Public Service. I have requeſted General Lawſon to collect and take Command of the Militia South of Appamatox. Local Impediments were thrown in the Road from Haliſax to Peterſburgh, and Precautions taken to remove the Horſes from the Enemy's Reach. Should it be poſſible to get Arms, ſome more Militia might be brought into the Field; but General Greene and myſelf labour under the ſame Diſadvantage: The few Militia we can with great Pains collect arrive unarmed, and we have not a Sufficiency of Weapons to put into their Hands.

Tranſlation of an intercepted Letter from Monſieur de Barras, Commander of the French Squadron, to the Chevalier de la Lucerne, at Philadelphia, dated Newport, May 27, 1781.

SIR,

I HAVE juſt received the Letter you did me the Honor to write me, dated the 20th of May, together with the Memorial incloſed in it. I have informed you, by my Letter of the 19th, of the Reſolution I had taken which prevented my being preſent at the Conference between General Waſhington and Monſ. de Rochambeau. The latter informed me he had acquainted you with what had been therein decided. I had given Anſwers to Two Propoſitions which Monſ. de Rochambeau foreſaw the American General would make; and it appears he has approved of them: I ſhould be deſirous with reſpect to the Operations to follow the Memorial you have ſent to me. You will ſee my Anſwers, as well as my Obſervations, from what Monſ. de Rochambeau writes to you. I wiſh they may meet with your Approbation.

The Engliſh Squadron has not been ſeen ſince the 23d.

As it is decided that the Squadron is to proceed to Boſton, I ſhall quickly repair thither, to haſten the Departure of the Men they are obliged to furniſh me with, to the Number of 900, to compleat the Ships Complements. You will eaſily imagine that when theſe Men are diſcharged the Squadron will be partly diſarmed.

I do not write to Monſieur de la Touche. If he is ſtill in the Delaware with the Ariel, and you deſtine him for the Northern Diſtrict, he muſt take the greateſt Precautions in the Navigation, and rendezvous at Boſton.

I am, &c.
BARRAS.

P. S. At my Arrival at Boſton I ſhall ſend away the Concord, with the Diſpatches, and the State of Virginia, to the Count de Graſſe.
